BREED THEATRE.

As the central figure in the motion picture production of Sir Gilbert Parker's "The Right of Way" showing for the first time at the Breed Theatre last evening, Bert Lytell, who was easily the most signal dramatic achievement of his long and enviable career.

An unusual part, that of Charles Steele, the dashing young attorney in Montreal—cynical, dissolute, undeniably winning, yet astounding supercilious. That Mr. Lytell should have portrayed it adequately would have been enough; that he did it splendidly means he is to be ranked among the foremost of our real stars of the screen. "The Right of Way" will be the feature attraction again today and Tuesday.

The production is superb. The artistry of this entire production is magnificent and the photographic effects are remarkable even in this day of almost perfect cinematography.

Other pictures on the bill include "After the Bawl," "Topics of the Day" and the Pathe news.

David Theatre.

Anthony Hope's exciting romance story, "Captain Dieppe," has reached the movies. First published as a novel the adventures of the dashing young secret agent proved a worthy companion of the author's earlier book, "The Prisoner of Zenda," which was the starting point of a flood of pseudo-historical literature. The popularity of "Captain Dieppe" led Mr. Hope to dramatize it and the stage play was produced both here and abroad. Recently the story was made into a scenario and under the title of "An Adventure in Hearts" it will be shown at the David Theatre Monday and Tuesday with Robert Warwick in the starring role. The picture tells an extraordinary yarn of adventure, love and plenty of excitement in a nobleman's castle in northern Italy. The hero is a sort of D'Artagnan, escaping from the agents of a government that has refused to pay him for a hazardous task which he accomplished and which it is anxious to keep secret. Mr. Warwick is said to be ideally cast. He is supported by Juan de la Cruz, a French actor, and Helene Chadwick and others.

The other big feature on this programme is Dorothy Dalton in "The Flame of the Yukon," a tremendous 5-part western picture and without a doubt the greatest picture this popular star has ever appeared in. "Brownies Busy Day" a two part American comedy complex the show.

Japan Wants Labor at Home.

Reports having reached Japan of movements in various South American States to further restrict immigration, the Tokio Kokumin insists the alarm of the South Americans is unwarranted. So far as Japan is concerned, her best efforts at present should be confined to keeping her laboring classes employed at home. The editor says: "It is not to the interest of national economics to export materials; the aim of a country should be to import materials and export manufactured articles. It is a shame that we should export human power, which is the most important of all the factors of national production. Some Americans think that Japan is trying hard to find the place to which her emigrants can be sent, but this is a grievous mistake. At present in Japan labor is insufficient not only in town but in the country. In fact, wages have risen so high as to have drawn the attention of a British statesman. In order to distinguish the Americans we should make a mistake. Japan is no longer an exporter of labor. Friendly relations exist between Japan and America, but it seems that the Americans still entertain many misunderstandings regarding the Japanese. It is earnestly wished that the American misunderstandings are absolutely unwarranted. Perhaps America will suffer from a shortage of labor in future, but it is doubtful whether Europe will be able to supply the needed labor. On the contrary the European countries will find it difficult even to obtain the human power necessary for their own reconstruction. If so, America will have to import labor from Asia, but on the position of the British Empire, it is not to be expected that Japan will be able to meet the demand." (East and West News.)
